COURSE SESSION OUTLINE

Course
Title of the lecture / seminar	Multilevel governance of natural resources in the Arctic

LECTURE / SEMINARS ABSTRACT

The course focuses on the interplay of state and non-state actors in governing natural resources, especially oil & gas, minerals and forests. There are different national and even regional solutions on how to share benefits of natural resource use. Some countries regulate local benefit sharing, while others leave it for natural resource extracting corporations to decide. International certificates greatly influence on companies' behavior. National regulation of land rights and participatory rights of local, especially indigenous people, is compared between Finland, Sweden, Norway, Russia and Alaska.

The course is supplemented with two seminars

Person Responsible for the seminar	Title of the Seminar
Olga Pushina Researcher, ULapland	Hierarchy of legal sources regulating minorities' rights in Russia
Ilari Hovila Senior Lecturer, ULapland Anssi Kärki Researcher, ULapland	Environmental liability enforcement in bankruptcy
